SABOTAGE OF G7 FIBER-OPTIC CABLES

While the police and their para-military weapons invaded the old city's streets, looking for some obscure threat, some shadows slid out of their lair. They attacked the telecommunications system recently updated in Charlevoix by some generous and powerful people. The need for a good fiber-optic connection for the G7 festival relies on a few thousands poles and some big black wires. And no, it's not the kind of thing that can ignite by itself... We also want to cheer the beaver who broke the fiber-optic network in 2013 and the ice which did the same in April of this year. We hope that by testing your network, we helped you miss a few tweets...

We refuse to be bound by your tentacular networks. For us, every technological advancement comes at the price of another regression in our liberty.
